

Biography

Mark Whitlock is the CEO of Central Educational Center (CEC).

CEC, Georgia's "model charter college and career academy," was developed by local Chamber leaders, the Coweta County School System and West Georgia Technical College. Mark worked with the "Steering Committee" to implement their planning and to open CEC. CEC opened August 10, 2000.

CEC has been designated one of 30 "replicable model high school reform" programs in the United States by the International Center for Leadership in Education. CEC has been replicated 58 times across Georgia in the Georgia College and Career Academy initiative, and has now been replicated in other states.

Mark is also the Director of Public Policy for the Coweta County School System. He chairs the State's Charter Advisory Committee.

For eighteen years prior to CEC, Mark worked with Bank of America building corporate client relationships worldwide.

Mark received Bachelor's and Master's Degrees from the University of Georgia, and the MBA from Georgia State University.
